

French A1 — Session 24 Reflection

Crescere | Beginner French | Session 24

Set aside 20–30 minutes

This is not ordinary homework. There is no next session to prepare for. This document is for you — to help you consolidate what you have learned, understand where you are, and plan what comes next.

Set aside 20–30 minutes. Make yourself a coffee. Do this slowly.

Part 1 — Course Reflection

Answer each question in one or two sentences. Write in English — this is a reflection, not a language exercise.

1. What surprised you most about learning French?
 2. What was the hardest moment? What did you do when you got stuck?
 3. What moment made you feel most proud of your French?
 4. Which week or topic do you feel most confident about? Which do you feel shakiest about?
 5. What kind of learner were you? Did you find it easier to speak or to write? Did you study between sessions or only in class?

Part 2 — A1 Self-Assessment Checklist

Be honest. This is only for you.

Communication:

- ☐ I can introduce myself (name, origin, profession, family, interests) in 4–5 sentences without stopping
- ☐ I can ask and answer basic questions about daily life
- ☐ I can make plans (suggest, agree, negotiate, decline politely)
- ☐ I can give directions to a place using prepositions
- ☐ I can order food or drink at a café or restaurant
- ☐ I can handle a shopping situation
- ☐ I can describe my home and neighbourhood in 3–4 sentences
- ☐ I can describe symptoms and ask for help at a pharmacy

Grammar:

- ☐ I use être and avoir in all forms without hesitation
- ☐ I conjugate regular -er, -ir, -re verbs correctly
- ☐ I use reflexive verbs for my daily routine (je me lève, je me couche)
- ☐ I use aller + infinitif for near-future plans
- ☐ I use devoir, pouvoir, vouloir naturally in planning contexts

- ☐ I apply au / aux / du / des contractions correctly most of the time
- ☐ I use partitive articles (du, de la, de l', des) and know they become de after negation
- ☐ I use depuis + présent to express ongoing duration
- ☐ I use avoir mal à + article + body part correctly

Writing:

- ☐ I can write 8–10 clear sentences on a familiar topic with mostly correct grammar
- ☐ I can write a short personal message that achieves its communicative purpose

Count your checks: 16–18 = solid A1. 12–15 = good A1 with some gaps. Below 12 = worth spending time on the weak areas before A2.

Part 3 — What to Work on Before A2

Based on your self-assessment, choose 2–3 items to focus on in the weeks before A2 begins. Write them here and make a concrete plan.

My top priorities:

1. _____
2. _____
3. _____

How I will practice:

- ☐ Write 3–5 sentences using this structure every day for a week
 - ☐ Find one French-language resource (podcast / video / app) to practice listening
 - ☐ Review my homework from the relevant week
 - ☐ Practice speaking out loud for 5 minutes per day

Part 4 — Staying Active Between A1 and A2

The most common reason students lose ground between courses is not forgetting — it is inactivity. Five minutes of French per day does more than five hours of cramming the week before A2 starts.

Recommended daily habits (choose at least one):

- Read: "Journal en français facile" (online — very simple news in French, free)
- Listen: "Coffee Break French" (podcast — excellent for A1/A2 level)
- Watch: French children's TV or YouTube in French with French subtitles
- Write: Keep a one-sentence French journal — just one sentence per day about what you did: "Aujourd'hui j'ai mangé une pizza." (You will be using passé composé naturally before A2 even begins.)
- App: Anki (spaced repetition flashcards) — create cards for the irregular verbs and contractions you missed in your self-assessment

The one-sentence journal is the single most useful recommendation. It keeps French present in your daily life, builds writing fluency, and accidentally prepares you for the passé composé in A2.

Part 5 — Optional A2 Preparation

If you want to get a head start before A2 begins:

Irregular verb review (A1 → A2 bridge): These verbs appear constantly in A2 content. Make sure you know all 6 forms: aller, être, avoir, faire, venir, prendre, savoir, connaître, devoir, pouvoir, vouloir.

Preview the passé composé (do not worry about mastering it): The passé composé has two parts: an auxiliary (avoir or être) + a past participle. For regular -er verbs: manger → mangé / parler → parlé. You already know both auxiliaries. The rest is just the new ending. In your one-sentence journal: try writing "J'ai mangé..." or "Je suis allé(e)..." — you will be practicing A2 grammar without realizing it.

Cultural immersion: Watch one French-language film (with French subtitles, not English). Le Dîner de Cons, Amélie, Les Intouchables are accessible and highly rewarding even at A1/A2 level. Don't worry about understanding everything — just stay with it.

Félicitations. Vous avez appris le français. Ce n'était pas facile. Continuez.
